APPLICANTS FOR LICENSE

To Sell Liquor Given Hearing By Commissioners.—No Decision
Today.

Brownstown was practically in possession of Seymour today. The movement toward the county seat began at an early hour and by noon between fifty and seventy-five Seymour people were there. In hacks, carriages, automobiles and by train the applicants for liquor license, their attorneys and their friends and others interested, journeyed to the neighboring city. It was the first day of the May term of the commissioners' court and the first day for the consideration of applications for liquor license.

The hearing began today but no licenses will be granted before Tuesday or Wednesday.

It has been the understanding that fifteen licenses would be granted for Seymour, this being the maximum number the law allows for a city of Seymour's population. There has been no indication that a change in the arrangement will be made, though an agitation was started today to limit the number to ten or twelve, if the question as to the fitness of some of the applicants should be presented.

If fifteen are granted licenses but one applicant will lose. One application, that of Knowles Mann, was withdrawn this morning, he having disposed of the building in which he proposed to start a saloon.

The remaining sixteen who have applications on file are: Charles F. Reed, George Williams, George H. Stinkamp, Henry J. Kirsh, Henry R. Lange, Henry E. Niehter, Peter Kessler, Richard Nicholson, James M. Phillips, Sam Rittenhaus, John A. Goodale, Jacob C. Becker, C. E. T. Dobbins, William T. Ross, Alexander Lee and Bert Cox.

Two Dudleytown men, Fred Christopher, Jr., and John Niewedde are applicants, although but one of them can win.

A PETITION For a Local Option Election in Driftwood Township Filed.

A petition for a local option election in Driftwood township has been filed with the county commissioners and will be acted upon at this term. If granted the election will probably be set for some time this month.

MARRIED.

KUEHN-DROEGE.

W. F. Kuehn, of Brownstown, and Miss Edna Droegge were married Sunday evening at the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Garrett Droegge, 401 Carter street. Rev. E. H. Eggers of the German Lutheran church officiated. About forty guests were present and after the ceremony a wedding supper was served.

They left this morning for Cleveland, O., to visit Rev. and Mrs. Gustave Meyer, the latter being a sister of the groom. They will also visit in Buffalo, N. Y., before their return. They will make their home in Brownstown where the groom is a leading merchant.

AT MADISON

Dr. George N. Rains, Formerly of Seymour, Married.

In a recent issue of a Madison paper appeared the following announcement of the marriage of a former Seymour physician.

At the Baptist parsonage last evening at 9 o'clock Dr. George W. Rains and Miss Rinda Fritler were quietly married by Rev. Stewart I. Long. Dr. and Mrs. Rains will make their home in this city.

The groom is a well known practicing physician of this city and a man of high character and with many friends in Madison. The bride has been a trained nurse at the King's Daughters' hospital for a number of years and her home is at North Vernon. She is a girl of charming character and disposition and has many friends.

Fitch Bruised.

Grant Fitch of Columbus, who is well known in Seymour, especially to Modern Woodmen, has, according to a Columbus paper, been at home for several days nursing a rather badly bruised face. According to reports, there was trouble at a meeting of the lodge following the discovery that two members had been caught using the lodge room for a carousal. When the father of the two young men charged with the offense heard of the charge he made an attack on Fitch. Several men were required to separate the combatants.

No Game.

The base ball game scheduled for Crothersville Sunday, was called off on account of the bad weather. A game is scheduled for next Sunday. The Crothersville team has been strengthened by the addition of three more outside men. They are said to be crack players and the Crothersville fans are now confidently predicting that the Blues will win the pennant this season.

Will Go To Scottsburg.

The degree team of Seymour lodge No. 204 I. O. O. F. will go to Scottsburg this evening to confer the first and second degrees on a class for the Scottsburg lodge. A big meeting has been arranged. Several Odd Fellows from here will accompany the team, leaving here on the 7 o'clock car. All members are invited to make the trip.

Masonic Meeting.

A special meeting of the Royal Arch Masons was held last Saturday evening when a class of candidates was given the degree work. A number of visitors from out of the city attended. Following the work there was a social time and lunch was served.

DIED.

IRWIN.

Mrs. Susanna Irwin died about 3 p. m. Sunday at the home of her son, Dr. A. B. Irwin, east of Seymour, in Jennings county. Her maiden name was Berlin and she was born February 20, 1822 in Westmoreland county, Penn. At an early age she moved with her parents to Carroll county, Ohio, where she grew to womanhood. She was married March 18, 1846 to James B. Irwin. After his death in 1868 she came to Indiana and has lived at different points in the state. For the past three years, she had made her home with her son in Jennings county. She was a member of the Methodist church and an excellent woman. The funeral services will be held Tuesday afternoon at the Methodist church in Hayden and will be conducted by Rev. C. E. Asbury, of this city.

ABELL.

Mrs. Ethel Abell, wife of Charles Abell, died Sunday afternoon at 5:30 o'clock at her home on West Oak street. She had been in poor health for some time, age 25 years, 10 months and 23 days. The husband and two children survive.

The funeral services were held this afternoon at 4 o'clock from the residence, conducted by Rev. H. R. Boock. Burial at Riverview cemetery.

DIED IN COLUMBUS.

Elisha Duckworth Came East to Care For Sick Brother.

Elisha Duckworth, brother of William Duckworth, of this city, died Monday morning at 4 o'clock in Columbus where he had been visiting. His home was in Blackwell, Okla., and he came to Seymour several weeks ago to care for his brother, William, who has been sick for some time. He went to Columbus for a few days stay and was taken sick there. Five children survive. The remains were shipped to Oklahoma this afternoon for burial.

HONORS AWARDED

Designs For Flower Beds at Shields Building Selected.

Some time ago the grade pupils of the Shields high school were asked to draw designs for the flower bed to be placed in the yard in front of the new building. A committee was appointed to examine the designs submitted and select the best one and Miss Esther Bush won first honors in the contest, her design being the initials S. H. S. The design prepared by Doris Geile was awarded second honors. It was a shield to represent the Shields building. Both will be used, the committee considering them very appropriate for the purpose intended. The two flower beds will add greatly to the appearance of the yard.

Excellent Speakers.

Besides Mrs. Peters, who has been in the missionary work in India for years, Mrs. Morse of Vincennes, Mrs. Badger of Greencastle and Mrs. Whitset of New Albany, who are district presidents, will be at the missionary meeting at the M. E. church Wednesday evening and will take part in the services. These are all excellent speakers and every woman interested in the missionary work it is hoped will hear them.

AN AGED WOMAN AND YOUNG GIRL

Who Spent Sunday Night in Seymour Excited Curiosity.—Questioned
by Marshal.

CAME HERE FROM LOUISVILLE

It Was Thought They Might Be the Couple Whose Disappearance Caused a Police Search.

Marshal Abell was in communication today with the Louisville chief of police regarding an old woman and a 12 year old girl who spent last night in Seymour.

Their appearance and their actions here attracted considerable attention and Marshal Abell became convinced they were the couple whose mysterious disappearance in Louisville Saturday caused a general search of the city by the police.

The Louisville chief after hearing Marshal Abell's description said the woman and child here were without doubt the two who had left Louisville but he said there was no demand for their detention.

While here the old woman gave her name as Mrs. Mary Byrd and that of the child, who she said was her granddaughter, as Nellie Smith. In Louisville the old woman was known as Mrs. Margaret Ray and the child as Lillie Stone. Mrs. Byrd said she left Louisville Saturday morning but became sick and left the car at Henryville. Sunday she came here, leaving this morning. She told the marshal and others she was going to Indianapolis, but she bought tickets for Columbus.

While here the old woman took the girl to a barber shop and had her hair cut short. The Courier Journal Sunday said regarding the disappearance of Mrs. Ray and Lillie Stone:

Mrs. Elizabeth Spicer, proprietor of a boarding house at 625 West Chestnut street, reported to the police last night that Mrs. Margaret Ray and her 12 year old granddaughter, Lillie Stone, were mysteriously missing from their apartments at her house. She said that they left at 7:30 o'clock yesterday morning, presumably to go to the post office to secure a draft for $500 which Mrs. Ray said had been mailed to her by relatives in Meridian, Miss., and that late last night not the slightest trace of them had been found. She said that Mrs. Ray was 87 years of age, and that she believed her to be a woman of considerable wealth. Mrs. Spicer declared that she felt the aged woman and her little grand-daughter had met with foul play, and Night Chief Ridge started a thorough investigation of the case.

Mrs. Spicer says that the little Stone girl is the niece of Col. Henry L. Stone, chief counsel for the Louisville & Nashville railroad. She says that Mrs. Ray told her when the child's father died he left an estate valued at about $9,000.

When asked about the matter last night, Col. Stone said that he had never heard of Mrs. Ray or the Stone girl. He said he knew of no such niece, and that he had not been visited by Mrs. Ray during her stay in Louisville. Col. Stone said that he had a number of relatives in Mississippi, and that possibly the Stone girl might be from one of these families.

When seen at her home last night, Mrs. Spicer said: "Mrs. Ray and the little girl came to Louisville Thursday, April 20, and decided to make their home with me. Mrs. Ray is from Meridian, Miss., and said she owns a large plantation in the Mississippi bottoms. I am convinced she is a woman of considerable wealth, and I know she is highly educated and has traveled all over the world. The little girl, Lillie Stone, is her granddaughter, and Mrs. Ray told me that she came to Louisville to place the child in a convent boarding school. She said that when the little girl's father died he left her a neat fortune, and placed it in trust to Mrs. Ray, on condition that she take care of his child. In his will it is made obligatory that the child should be educated in Kentucky so the grandmother was obeying this order when she came to Louisville.

UNUSUAL OCCURRENCE.

Rush Was So Great Store Had to be Closed One Hour.

Saturday afternoon there was an unusual occurrence in Seymour at the store of Adolph Steinwedel. All afternoon the store was crowded and at four o'clock the rush was so great that the clerks were unable to handle the customers and from four to five the store was closed. During this time those already in the store were waited on and the clerks were given an opportunity to straighten up the stock and prepare for the later rush.

Mr. Steinwedel has been conducting a big reduction sale preparatory to removal to the Ross building. He offered big bargains and advertised extensively, carrying a page in the Republican several days.

Mr. Steinwedel has always been a believer in advertising and he now has more faith than ever in it.

REMOVAL SALE

We are going to move across the street from our present location within the next ten days. Shelving as well as shoes must be moved. With our present stock this would be a difficult task. So we wish to reduce the stock as much as possible. Now we are not going to sell shoes regardless of cost, but we are going to make a 10 per cent. reduction on EVERY PAIR OF SHOES in the house, and a 25 per cent. reduction on all broken lots.

Recollections of An Old Soldier.

Sunday, April 30, was the 47th anniversary of the battle of the "Saline River", Ark, where the Rebel Army under Gen. Mangduke, Gen. Calie and Gen. Fagan fought Gen Steele's army. Among the boys who were in the battle, now all old men, were Jim Honan, John Dixon, Jake Hopple, Lieut. McNelly, Elisha Ruddick and Ben Carter. Carter was badly wounded, was taken prisoner and kept in that "Hell hole" Lylen, Texas until exchanged. The boys who were there will recollect that Gen. Sherman's words, "War is Hell", were true as any saying in the Bible. This was on the Camden expedition while Gen. Banks was on his Red River expedition.

TEACHERS IN A DEADLY WRECK

Excursionists From Utica Encounter Disaster.

THEIR TRAIN LEFT THE TRACK

Gas Tanks Underneath Cars Exploded and in an Instant Fated Train Was Enveloped in Flames—That Only Eleven Met Death in Holocaust Instead of a Hundred or More Is a Matter For Wonder.

Easton, Pa., May 1.—By the derailment and burning of the Utica teachers' special near Martins Creek Saturday afternoon, eleven lives were lost. Railroad men themselves say that the most remarkable feature of the wreck was that a hundred were not killed in the terrific shock and the sudden sweep of fire.

Flames were rushing from end to end of the train, while bruised women were clambering up the side of tilted cars striving for the windows. Their hands were burned as they raised themselves on the sills to be helped out. Half a dozen teachers got to the ground with their hair ablaze. For minutes after the Utica women were tearing burning skirts from each other. One ran an eighth of a mile across a plowed field, trying to loose herself from a burning skirt. It was lucky that a farmer saw her distress.

Besides seven teachers, four employees of the Pennsylvania are dead. The fire made such thorough work that it is impossible for the surgeons to tell whether the fragments found are the remains of men or women. The Easton hospital has ten patients under its care. Three of these are in a dangerous condition. All of the survivors save the injured in the hospitals and a dozen teachers who remained here to be near their friends, were sent home by the Pennsylvania railroad. Many of those who went back to Utica carried injuries, some of them serious; but they were able to travel and preferred to get home as quickly as possible.

With the burning cars eight miles away from Easton in a difficult country and separated from the highways to Easton by the Delaware river, a situation was presented that caused confusing and contradictory reports. The Pennsylvania officials were unwilling or unable to furnish information to relatives or friends of the teachers. As late as 9 o'clock Saturday night, six hours after the wreck, Utica believed that at least 100 of her teachers were dead in the wreck. People in Utica were frantic for news and could not get it. Telegrams were sent to Easton and Phillipsburg that never reached the people they were dispatched to. So the mayor of Utica sent his secretary, Mr. Day, to get the facts. Among other things, Utica wanted to know who was to blame. After investigating, Mr. Day said that he would report that the cause of the disaster was a track too weak to stand the strain of a heavy train rushing along at fifty miles an hour. He had learned that the roadbed was too poorly ballasted; that many of the ties were decayed and crumbling; that the rails were old. There was no doubt, he thought that the accident was the result of spreading rails. The teachers' special, sweeping around a wide curve, snatched a thousand feet of the west rail clean from the track and hurled sections of it into the scraggly oaks that line the Delaware river.

Of the five coaches, the leading one was an old-fashioned wooden combination smoker and baggage car. The next three were wooden chair cars. The fifth coach was a dining car. All of them were lighted by acetylene gas, contained in tanks carried underneath the car bodies. When the coaches ground together in the gully to the east of the track, the tanks burst. The gas escaped through four coaches simultaneously, was ignited in some way, and the whole train was ablaze the minute it crashed into the earth. And the passengers had to fight their way through fire to get out.

BATTLE OF PHILIPPI

The President Will Participate in Semi-Centennial Celebration.

Charleston, W. Va., May 1.—President William H. Taft has announced that he will visit West Virginia this summer. He intends coming to Philippi, Barbour county, in early June to deliver an address at the semi-centennial celebration commemorating the first battle of the civil war. The celebration is to be held under the auspices of the organization of the Blue and the Gray, and the president has signified his intention of making an address unless some extremely important matter interferes. While Bull Run is credited in history with being the first battle of the war of the states, the facts bear out the statement that the first encounter occurred near Philippi, in Barbour county. Ex-President Roosevelt and Colonel William J. Bryan also have been invited to attend.

Suspected Negro Arrested.

Lakewood, N. J., May 1.—Detectives seeking the murderer of Mrs. Charles Turner, whose body was found in the woods near here, arrested Henry Graham, a negro, twenty-five miles from the spot where Mrs. Turner met her death.

Sons of Kings of Finance Ready To Take Their Fathers' Places

THE world knows little of the heirs apparent of the kings of finance—of the sons of the very rich who are destined to step into the shoes of their fathers. It was one of the favorite dictums of the late Russell Sage that

If you let a boy know that he is going to be rich when he grows up in nine cases out of ten he turns out worthless. Undoubtedly most of the sons of American magnates know that they will succeed to their fathers' fortunes, and very few of them have turned out in accordance with the Sage formula. The apparent heir to the greatest fortune accumulated in this country is John D. Rockefeller, Jr. He went through college with the allowance of a boy of moderate circumstances. He has worked at a clerk's desk at a clerk's salary and is reputed to know the oil business in its minutest detail. It is not likely that he will ever dissipate the fortune that his father made.

J. Pierpont Morgan, Jr., has taken over a large share of the financial responsibilities of the elder Morgan, and the time cannot be far distant when he will be the head of the house of Morgan & Co. Immediately after graduating he began work as a clerk in his father's office. He obeyed the same rules laid down for the other clerks and displayed a great capacity for hard work.

As soon as he had mastered the details of one department he was shifted to another, and so on throughout the many branches of the great financial institution.

H. H. Rogers, son of the late executive head of the Standard Oil, has assumed many of the responsibilities of his father. He graduated about eleven years ago and since then has made a reputation for sticking to business.

Ten Dollar a Week Clerk.

William K. Vanderbilt, Jr., is now thirty-three years of age. After graduation young Vanderbilt went to work like any ten dollar a week clerk, the only difference being that he didn't have to. Cornelius, third of the name and grandson of the old commodore, like all the Vanderbilts, went to Yale and there distinguished himself by his close application to his studies. He showed a decided taste for engineering, and after leaving college he entered the machine shops of the New York Central and subsequently patented a locomotive which is now in extensive use on all of the Vanderbilt lines. He is not now identified with any of the old Vanderbilt interests, such as the New York Central and Lake Shore roads, but is a director in the Illinois Central and the Delaware and Hudson.

"The richest heritage that a young man can have," James J. Hill once said, "is stern necessity." He had no heritage of this sort to bestow upon his son, Louis W. Hill, but he gave to him what was equally valuable, stern responsibility. This came about when the elder Hill resigned from the presidency of the Great Northern, relegating the duties of the office to his son. Of the son it is related that when he was twelve years of age a family conference was held in the Hill home in St. Paul for discussing the future of the youth. Several careers were suggested. The boy listened to them all and then calmly announced his intention of being a railroad man.

Climbed From Bottom Up. The young president of the Great Northern is credited with knowing the railroad business from the bottom up. After his college days he began work in his chosen field as laborer with a construction gang. He next went to the shops and subsequently to the operating department. Then he became a clerk in the executive offices. Gradually working his way up, he became president of the Eastern railroad of Minnesota and then had placed upon his shoulders the management of the Great Northern.

Included in the list of the younger generation who are making good is Robert Walton Goelet. One of his recent ventures was the erection of the Ritz-Carlton in Madison avenue, New York.

There is no speculation as to who will succeed James Stillman, former head of the National City bank, as it is certain that this will be James A. Stillman, his son. The younger Stillman has been trained in business since he graduated from Harvard with the class of 1896. He first served as a clerk, then as assistant cashier. A few years later he was elected as a director and vice president of the bank.

Until called back to attend his father's illness young Averell Harriman, son of the late E. H. Harriman, was carrying a chain in a surveying gang on the Oregon Short Line in Idaho. At that time he was receiving a salary of $65 per month. After the death of his father he went into the operating department of the Harriman lines and is now identified with the huge interests which his father built up.

Sons of Thomas F. Ryan.

Mortimer L. Schiff is being trained to assume the responsibilities of his father, Jacob Schiff, one of the biggest money powers in Wall street. He began work as a clerk at $8 a week in the office of Kuhn, Loeb & Co. and by hard work and application to business won his position as a member of the firm. Kingdon Gould, the heir presumptive to the Gould millions, learned the practical side of mining in Colorado. Edwin, another of the sons of the late Jay Gould, is president of the St. Louis and Southwestern railroad and through his energy and skill has made a paying business of the property.

Allan A. Ryan and Clendenin J. Ryan, sons of Thomas F. Ryan, are fitting themselves to take up their father's work. In 1905 the two formed the firm of Allan A. Ryan & Bro. Allan Ryan presents as fine an example as you can find of the son of a rich man who has succeeded. Where he might have leisure and ease he is a tireless worker. Like his father, he is tall and rangy, with tremendous capacity for labor. Wall street points to him and says, "He will establish a new mark for the Ryan name."

Since his graduation from Yale five years ago Stuyvesant Fish, Jr., has been preparing to follow the lead of his father. He began his railroad apprenticeship in the Chicago offices of the Illinois Central as a clerk at $60 a month.

MONSTER VALVES.

Those of Power Company at Niagara Falls Are World's Largest.

The three huge gate valves constructed to control the water used to drive the 120,000 horsepower turbines of the Ontario Power company at Niagara Falls are undoubtedly the largest in the world. They have a waterway diameter of nine feet, weigh 130,000 pounds each, and in actual operation each will be under a pressure of more than 550,000 pounds.

Two flat cars were required for the transportation of each valve. The overall height of the valves is thirty feet three inches, the width eleven feet, and the total thickness over the flanges is six feet eight inches. The body is of cast iron and the gate of cast steel.

TOURING CAR PASSING THROUGH WATERWAY OF HUGE VALVE.

A MAINE CITY IS FIRE SWEEP

Bangor Suffers a Loss Exceeding $5,000,000.

FIREMEN WERE POWERLESS

Swept by a Strong Wind, Flaming Brands Were Carried Over the City, Starting So Many New Centers of Fire That Department Could Do Little to Combat Flames—Much of Businesses Section Destroyed.

Bangor, Maine, May 1.—By a fire which broke out in Bacon & Robinson's coalsheds on Broad street shortly after 3 o'clock Sunday afternoon, and which was not under control until daylight this morning, damage estimated at $5,000,000 was caused. Two are known to have been killed and over twenty injured.

Everything north of York street, from Kenduskeag stream to the east side of Broadway, was burned. Nearly all of the fine residences in the most exclusive section of the city as well as the postoffice and all of the largest office and business buildings, are in ruins. The First Congregational church on Broadway, one of the oldest in the state; St. Johns Episcopal, the Central Congregational, the First Baptist and the Universalist churches are gone, as is the Windsor hotel, and the high school building. The Bangor public library, with one of the most valuable collections of books in New England, is destroyed.

The mammoth lumber mills of Morse & Co., on Valley avenue, caught and the huge piles of lumber along the stream were doomed. Help arrived on a special train over the Maine Central from Augusta, Lewiston, Bucksport and Old Town. Although scores of buildings were dynamited, the firemen were powerless to check the flames until rain began to fall after midnight. A strong southeast wind was blowing and flying embers were responsible for the extent of the fire. G Company of the Second Maine infantry, which is stationed here, was called to prevent looting, and the cadet battalion from the University of Maine at Oron arrived under command of Lieutenant Colonel Varnum, Sixth United States cavalry.

There are several million dollars' worth of securities in the safety deposit vaults of the various banks which have burned and sentries with loaded rifles are on guard. Although the city hall did not catch fire, thirteen prisoners who were in the cells at the police station were released by order of Mayor Mullen. All residences on the east side of Kenduskeag stream were emptied of valuables and furniture, but it was impossible to hire either teams or autos at any price.

Thousands of people were rendered homeless, and the entire city was panic-stricken. Men, women and children early began to flee from the scene. Many tried to carry their household effects out of the fire zone, but it was impossible to secure wagons for this purpose, so wheelbarrows and baby carriages were pressed into service. Into these were hastily packed what valuables could be thought of in moments when the bravest would have been at their wits ends, and on every hand could be seen these people making their way into the country.

Great pieces of flaming wood were carried into the air and hurled like meteors by the draught caused by the rush of fire, only to fall upon some distant building and set it going. The firemen were absolutely helpless before the conflagration. When they had coupled up to other hydrants their new positions became untenable owing to the great heat and smoke which drove low through the streets on account of the strong breeze. Both sides of Exchange street from York to State, both sides of State from the Kenduskeag stream to Harlow, Park street, Harlow from State to Prospect, Central for almost its entire length; much of Franklin street and parts of York, French and other streets were swept clean. Main street, the principal retail street of the city, and the city hall, courthouse and jail were untouched.

The city was in darkness, except for the light of the fire, and the greatest confusion prevailed, the entire population being in the streets. The fire was visible for twenty-five miles around and thousands of people swarmed in from surrounding towns.

UNITED STATES MAIL (ORDER) BAG

THE PARABLE OF THE MISSPENT MONEY

Once upon a time in the land of Uncle Sam a colony of people organized themselves into a Town. The Town grew and waxed fat upon the produce of the Land roundabout, and the people dwelt happily under their own Vines and Fig Trees, and the Tradesmen built Emporiums of Merchandise, and all was well. More people joined the Colony from year to year until the Town was a place of Population and Prosperity. But the time came when into the midst of the Town crawled a Serpent of Discord, yecept the Mail Order Catalogue, which whispered into the ears of the people a Siren Song of Big Bargains, the same being a Fable and a Fake. Thereat the people thought they saw a Good Thing, and they Bit. In the course of events the merchants closed their doors and removed to other Towns wherein as yet the Mail Order Serpent had not entered. Large Hollyhocks grew up before the closed doors, and Grass grew in the streets, whereof the Cows ate bountifully. It was fun for the Cows, but death to the Town.

RAISING MONEY FOR PRISONERS

Gompers Starts Movement In McNamara Defense.

SEEKING BEST LEGAL TALENT

In a Conference With Heads of Labor Unions Located at Indianapolis, the President of the American Federation of Labor Declared That It Was the Duty of Organized Labor to Stand by the Accused.

Indianapolis, May 1.—Samuel Gompers, president of the American Federation of Labor, was in conference with the heads of labor organizations for five hours here Sunday, and every detail of the McNamara case was gone over carefully and discussed pro and con. The meeting was held in the offices of the Carpenters' and Joiners' building on East Michigan street, and was behind closed doors.

Gompers expressed his belief in the innocence of McNamara and said with emphasis that it was the duty of organized labor to stand by the accused and see that all of them were accorded a fair trial. To this end he favored raising a sum of money enough to defray all needed expenses and for the employment of the best legal talent that the country afforded. All present agreed that the best way to provide for this expense was to levy a special assessment, but Gompers said that it would be better to leave these details to the executive council, that the plan might be worked out systematically. He was confident, though, that the responses would leave nothing wanting in the way of money. What is raised, it was agreed, would also be used to prosecute the alleged kidnapers of McNamara.

Detective W. J. Burns is here, but is reticent.

Arraignment Set For Wednesday.

Los Angeles, May 1.—Arraignment of James McNamara, John J. McNamara and O. E. McManigal on a charge of destroying the Los Angeles Times building by the use of dynamite and thereby causing the death of twenty-one employees, probably will be held Wednesday.

BOUNTY DENIED

Cass County Crow Hunters Express Their Indignation.

Logansport, Ind., May 1.—Indignant farmers from Deer Creek township stormed about the auditor's office and vowed political death to County Attorney Guthrie for his interpretation of the acts of 1911 relating to the statute providing a bounty for killing crows. Otto Cook, a farmer living near Young America, headed the quintet of crow hunters that filed into the county auditor's office and laid upon the counter the heads of twenty-five crows. He demanded the bounty of 10 cents a head provided by law. Auditor Wallace consulted County Attorney Guthrie, who instructed him to refuse the bounty on the grounds that the statute is optional. Guthrie declares the law specified the commissioners and county council "may" appropriate a fund to pay the bounty, but are not compelled to. There are more crows in Cass county than any other county in the state, and there are more idle hunters to kill them.

Payment of the bounty would entail too much annoyance and expense is the answer Guthrie made the crow hunters.

Woman Strangely Missing.

Bedford, Ind., May 1.—Mrs. Eliza Byers, sixty years old, is missing and her relatives are much concerned. She has been in poor health for several years and was recently declared of unsound mind. She is known to have inquired at the various ticket offices the cost of railroad tickets, but is not known to have purchased. She had considerable money in bank, but it has not been disturbed.

Saturday's Option Elections.

Indianapolis, May 1.—As a result of Saturday's local option elections, Union township, Delaware county, and Wayne township, Henry county, went "dry," and Wheatfield township, Jasper county; Wabash township, Jay county; and Linton township, Newton county, went "wet."

Found Stolen Mail Matter.

Wabash, Ind., May 1.—A big bundle of documents and money orders stolen from the postoffice at North Manchester, this county, last fall, when the safe was blown by yeggs, was found on the banks of Eel river at Liberty Mills. No trace of the burglars was ever secured.

Robbers Beat Their Victims.

Vincennes, Ind., May 1.—Gilbert Tarwater, a farm hand, and his employer, Elmer Cummins, were attacked by robbers in the Cummins home and beaten into insensibility. Five dollars, all the money in the house, was taken.

Guilty of Manslaughter.

Logansport, Ind., May 1.—The jury in the case of Samuel A. Michael, charged with the murder of Levi Piplinger, returned a verdict finding Michael guilty of manslaughter.

THE NEWLYWEDS

Grandson of Old Jay Gould
to Take His Bride Abroad.

© 1911, by American Press Association.

New York, May 1.—Young Jay Gould and his bride, who was Annie Douglas Graham, will spend the first weeks of their honeymoon in George J. Gould's camp in the Adirondacks and within a month will sail for England, where they will be the guests, with the other members of the Gould family, of Lord and Lady Decies for the coronation season. They will probably tour the continent in an automobile after the coronation.

SPECIAL SESSION IS FOR BUT ONE PURPOSE

No Way to Cloud the Issue
In West Virginia.

Charleston, W. Va., May 1.—To compel a reluctant and unwilling legislature to enact a direct primary law providing for the direct nomination of all candidates for public office, including the office of United States senator, is the task Governor Glasscock has imposed upon himself in assembling the legislature to meet in special session on May 16.

The task Governor Glasscock has outlined to the legislature, and for which he called the lawmakers into special session, is not a pleasant one, owing to the threatened opposition of the two United States senators, Watson and Chilton, but the West Virginia governor has a distinct advantage because he has called the extra session for the sole purpose of acting upon the proposed reform primary election law. The issue cannot be clouded with the injection of other extraneous matter into the session of the lawmakers.

Governor Wilson's Trip.

Trenton, N. J., May 1.—Governor Wilson will leave his home in Princeton Wednesday afternoon and will return on the afternoon of May 29, having in the meantime swung around the circuit to the extent of some 7,000 miles of railroad travel, stopping to make speeches at Kansas City, Denver, Los Angeles, San Francisco, Portland, Seattle, Minneapolis, St. Paul and Lincoln.

JOHN J. McNAMARA

In Whose Behalf a General
Labor Strike Is Proposed.

HAYWOOD PROPOSES A GENERAL STRIKE

Labor's Protest Against Alleged
"Kidnapping."

St. Louis, May 1.—On the day J. J. McNamara, now in jail in Los Angeles, Cal., in connection with the blowing up of the Times building there last winter comes to trial, a general strike of every laboring man in the United States is to be called as labor's protest against the alleged "kidnapping" of McNamara, according to a circular prepared by the Industrial Workers of the World, an organization controlling 50,000 men. This circular, which will be sent all over the United States in a few days, was read here Sunday afternoon by William D. Haywood to a mass meeting of 1,000 Socialists and labor unionists who packed Aschenbroedel hall to hear Haywood, who five years ago, with Moyer and Pettibone, was "kidnapped" in Denver and rushed by special train to Boise City, Idaho, on a similar charge to that which McNamara must face.

According to Haywood's plan as outlined in the circular and for which he stands sponsor, the Socialists are expected to organize the workers outside the labor unions and persuade them to quit their jobs on the day McNamara comes to trial, while the union men are expected to join in the movement.

RELICS UNCOVERED

Kentucky Farmer Makes Interesting
Find on His Farm.

Elizabethtown, Ky., May 1.—Hugh Yates, a farmer of Vine Grove, this county, discovered a large ash pit at the foot of a bluff on his farm, which probably was made by the Indians or the Mound Builders. The pit is unusual in size and contains many relics.

It is twenty feet in width, fifty feet in length and nine feet in depth. Mr. Yates found many relics, such as arrow heads and pieces of pottery and bones carved in various shapes. The skeletons of three humans also were uncovered. Only about one-fifth of the pit has been dug out.

Swept by a Tornado.

Warrensburg, Mo., May 1.—A tornado swept a path a mile wide across northern Johnson county, ten miles from Fayetteville to Valley City. More than a score of houses were unroofed. Only one death is reported, though many were injured.

TERSE TELEGRAMS

Cardinal Gibbons has expressed his disapproval of the proposition of Episcopalian ministers to shorten the Ten Commandments.

A demonstration against the Canadian trade bill will be made before the senate committee on finance by northwestern farmers the latter part of this week.

A petition signed by more than a thousand students of the scientific schools of Mexico City has been presented to President Diaz asking him to resign.

When Willard Krugman, a New York truckman, ran down and killed the young son of Giuseppe Bongroci, a cigarmaker, Bongroci shot and killed the truckman.

Industrial disputes affecting about 50,000 workmen in Chicago were ushered in this morning with the first day of May, known throughout the country as "strike day."

Henry Lewis, colored, committed suicide to escape posses and probable lynching in St. Louis county, Missouri, for murdering Henry A. Ferguson, a prominent business man.

That the Mexican insurgents are not failing to prepare for war while talking peace was evidenced when the United States troops caught them in the act of smuggling over new Mauser rifles from El Paso and confiscated them all.

The prix de honneur in the competition for literary prizes offered by the Society of French Professors of America has been awarded to James B. Clarke, a Cornell negro student, who is a junior in the arts college and comes from the West Indies.

MORE RUMORS

Regarding Proposed New Interurban Report Interest of Pennsylvania.

Numerous reports are afloat concerning the proposed new interurban line from Seymour to Indianapolis. The latest report is to the effect that the Pennsylvania railway company is indirectly back of the movement. It is asserted that the company has the controlling interest in the bonds of the Indianapolis & Louisville Traction Company which operates the line from Sellersburg to Seymour. No interest has been paid on the bonds of this line and as recently stated the majority of the bonds are held by a Pittsburgh Trust Co., which may be the Pennsylvania Co. It has been stated that a reorganization of the traction line is now in progress.

As to the interests the company have in the line, it is said with the track elevation now in progress in the city of Indianapolis, that the Pennsylvania will construct a connecting line from University Heights or Garfield Park with the Vandalia for its trains to enter the Union station from the Louisville division to save the cost of elevation which will have to be done, should the present route be continued.

In this connection it is said the Ella Lockman to William Dunn, the railroad line from Seymour to Indianapolis and use the present J. M. & I. route in entering Indianapolis.

Rights for the proposed line have been secured through Southport, Greenwood and Whiteland. No franchise has been asked for in Franklin as yet.

BUSINESS HOUSE

Sold by Knowles Mann to D. O. Dunn, the Baker.

Knowles Mann today sold the brick building on the southwest corner of Ewing and Third streets to D. O. Dunn who will use it for a bakery. His business has been growing rapidly the past year and the building he now occupies in the southeast part of the city is no longer large enough.

Before moving he will make numerous improvements to his new property. He expects to conduct a thoroughly sanitary establishment.

The deal has been on for several days and the closing of it resulted in their being one less application today for liquor license. Mr. Mann had an application on file and it was understood that he was on the winning slate. After the trade was closed the application for license was withdrawn.

Two Strange Diseases.

According to a well known medical authority, the seemingly strangest of all known diseases are called astasia and akathisia. Astasia is a nervous affection, and a person suffering from it cannot stand upright. If he tries he will be obliged to hop and jump whenever his feet touch the ground. Akathisia is the exact opposite of astasia, since a person suffering from it cannot remain seated. The moment he sits in a chair he is obliged to start up again. A person afflicted with akathisia can walk easily, but cannot sit, whereas a person suffering from astasia cannot stand upright and cannot walk in the ordinary manner owing to the contraction of the lower limbs.—New York Herald.

Twist of the Pretzel.

The pretzel is capable of infinite possibilities in the matter of shape. It shows almost as many forms as do the leaves of trees. The construction of the pretzel may be not inaptly described in sailor terms. Its peculiar shape is attained in this way: A bight is taken in a roll of dough, and the ends are given a half twist and brought back upon the opposite sides of the bight. This process gives to the pretzel a heart shaped appearance, but no one ever ventured to hint that any sentimental reason existed for assigning this shape to such a prosaic thing as a pretzel. When the pretzel has been duly "varnished" it is subjected to a process of salting, and the thing is complete.—Harper's.

Two Sets of Muscles.

You have two sets of muscles—the outer ones, which you can feel, and the inner ones, which are your lungs, heart, stomach and other internal organs. The outer ones are conveniences for performing actions. The inner ones are your life—the "fate" which makes you happy or depressed, powerful or weak, useful or the contrary. These inner muscles require training, just like any other muscles, by intelligently directed exercise.—J. Edmund Thompson in National Magazine.

Busy Month for Postoffice.

The local postoffice force will be unusually busy throughout the month of May. Every piece of mail coming into the office and every piece going out during the month must be classified and counted. The time of clerks and carriers in handling each class must be kept and the total number of pieces handled and the total time consumed in handling must be footed up each day and entered on a blank form made for that purpose. This means much extra work and therefore will be an extremely hard month's work for all employees in the office. This same sort of work will be done in all postoffices of the same class throughout the country.

Attorney General Honan spent Sunday here and went to Brownstown this morning on business.

MY DAUGHTER WAS CURED

By Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Baltimore, Md.—"I send you herewith the picture of my fifteen year old daughter Alice, who was restored to health by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. She was pale, with dark circles under her eyes, weak and irritable. Two different doctors treated her and called it Green Sickness, but she grew worse all the time. Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound was recommended, and after taking three bottles she has regained her health, thanks to your medicine. I can recommend it for all female troubles."—Mrs. L. A. HOT PAN OR PLATE LIFTER

The danger of burning the hand or arm removing hot plates or pans from ovens can be obviated by the fashioning of a simple device. Two loops of wire are made, one a little longer than the other. One of the loops is fixed firmly in an 18-in. wooden handle, and the other is attached to the handle, but allowed to swing free. The method of operation is to engage one side of the pan with the fixed loop and the swinging loop will swing under the other side. The pan can be lifted without the hands coming in contact with it or with the oven.—From Popular Mechanics Magazine.

Remarkable Milk and Butter Yield.

Wm. Hodapp of Hamilton township, has a cow which has a remarkable record as a milk and butter producer. He kept an accurate record for forty-eight hours during which she produced ninety-seven and one-half pounds of milk from which they churned four and one-eighth pounds of butter. The cow is a three-fourths Poll Durham and one-fourth Jersey. This is a record that will be hard to beat.

HOME FOR GIRL.

Who Went to Columbus From Seymour Recently.

Jessie Mays, the young girl who ran away from a band of nomads and after working for a short time in the Woolen mills at Seymour, came to Columbus and appealed to Chief of Police Cooper for aid, did not appeal in vain. As stated in this paper at the time of the girl's coming Chief Cooper and Mayor Barnaby were greatly affected by the pitiful story the child had to tell and lodged her in the care of Mrs. Edwards at the Commercial Hotel until a home could be found for her.

Chief Cooper set about his work earnestly and Friday found a home for Jessie with a well-to-do family in this county where she will receive good care and have a chance to grow up like other girls.

"If a longing for the old nomadic life doesn't get the best of her, the girl will come out all right," said the chief. "I am deeply sorry for her and hope she will find peace and comfort and come out all right."—Columbus Herald.

Little is known of the Mays girl here. It is supposed she is a girl who secured employment at the woolen mills a short time ago, stating that she came from the country. She worked at the mill but a short time.

SEVENTY CASES OF DYNAMITING IN LAST FEW YEARS; LIST OF OUTRAGES

Railroads the Chief Sufferers---Many Buildings Wrecked

Scarcely any Part of the Country Free From Damage

PRACTICALLY no part of the United States has been free from dynamite outrages during the last few years. In nearly all cases there was a careful preparation, showing that the outrages were planned and executed by men who knew their business.

Many of the outrages entailed a loss of life, and all caused considerable financial losses. Contractors in some cases have been driven into bankruptcy because of the lack of confidence in their ability to construct without disaster, and some contractors have been compelled to put their work in other hands.

Planning of a professional nature has been a striking feature of all the outrages. In numerous instances clocks operating the explosives were set to cause explosions in different parts of the country at exactly the same minute. Homes have been endangered, although in most cases the bombs failed either to explode or were found in time to prevent disaster.

A list of seventy of these outrages, attributed by the National Erectors' association to labor troubles, follows:

One of the earliest of the attacks was in the summer of 1905, when a watchman in a bridge under construction for the Central Vermont railroad at Miller's Falls, Mass., was assaulted. The following morning the foreman found thirteen sticks of dynamite on the bridge. The fuse had been lighted, but had become extinguished.

During the same summer an engineer found dynamite in the fire box of a hoisting engine used in the construction of the Kimberley avenue bridge, over the West river, for the city of New Haven, Conn.

Attempt on Cleveland Hotel.

An attempt was made on March 12, 1906, to dynamite the Hotel Frankfort, Cleveland, O., where a number of employees of a bridge construction company were boarding. The dynamite exploded, but the wrecked part of the building was reached in time to prevent destruction by fire.

Three sticks of dynamite were discovered in the fire box of a hoisting engine used in the construction of the Arcade building in Cleveland on April 2, 1906. The fuse had been attached and, it appeared, had been lighted.

An attempt was made one month later to wreck a derrick used in constructing a bridge on the Buffalo and Susquehanna railroad. The attempt was frustrated.

A derrick used in the construction of the Central Railroad of New Jersey was dynamited and destroyed on May 31, 1906.

Dynamite was found on a derrick used in the construction of a Nickel Plate viaduct on Sept. 25, 1905. A time clock was found also. The infernal machine probably had been dropped from a passing train, as the package had been broken open and the dynamite scattered.

During the construction of a viaduct for the P. V. and C. railroad near Clairton, Pa., a derrick car was dynamited. The outrage was committed on Oct. 12, 1906. A watchman was decoyed away from the place and assaulted.

Dynamite exploded under a bascule bridge over the Cuyahoga river at Whiskey Island, near Cleveland, O., on Dec. 30, 1906. The damage was slight. In September, 1907, a hoisting engine used at the plant of the American Steel and Wire company, Cleveland, was dynamited and destroyed. The dynamiting was done at night.

Early in the morning of Oct. 30, 1907, an attempt was made to wreck the Baltimore and Ohio bridge at Youngstown, O. The dynamite exploded, but the bridge was not wrecked.

Railroad Bridge Dynamited.

Two months later dynamite was placed under a railroad bridge on the Newark branch of the Erie railroad near Harrison, N. J. The dynamite damaged one of the girders and blew out thirty-six square feet of buckle plate. The damage was $2,000.

Two tons of material which was to have been used on the Parma road bridge on the Cleveland Short Line was damaged to such an extent on Dec. 31, 1907, that it had to be replaced. There was a loss of $500.

On the same night ten tons of material for the construction of the L. E. and P. railroad's Mill creek viaduct was damaged, and a loss of $1,200 resulted.

Several girders for the Eagle avenue bridge, Cleveland, were dynamited the night of Jan. 17, 1908, and considerable surrounding property was damaged.

Thirty sticks of dynamite were found in various parts of a derrick car used in the construction of a Chicago and Northwestern railroad bridge over the Mississippi river at Clinton, Ia., on Feb. 18, 1908. Only a small part of the dynamite exploded. The damage was $2,000.

A month later a derrick car on the Chicago, Milwaukee and St. Paul railroad at Buena Park, Chicago, was dynamited.

During the same month a charge of dynamite was placed on a drawbridge at Perth Amboy, N. J., causing a $1,500 loss.

A bridge near Bradshaw, Md., was damaged the same night.

A hoisting crane used in the construction of the Chelsea piers, New York, was damaged to the extent of $1,000 the night of April 5, 1908.

A loss of $1,000 was caused on April 13, 1908, when dynamite was placed under material prepared for the Philadelphia Elevated railroad.

An explosion of dynamite caused a loss of $2,000 April 26, 1908, at a bridge at Fall River, Mass.

Dynamite caused a loss on May 3, 1908, to the Cincinnati, Hamilton and Dayton railroad's Miami river bridge at Dayton, O. Much of the material had to be replaced.

103 Sticks of Explosive Found.

An attempt was made the night of May 21, 1908, to destroy a drawbridge over the Bronx river of the New York, New Haven and Hartford railroad. A watchman was assaulted, and his cries caused the would be perpetrators to flee. The men discarded a suit case in their flight containing 103 sticks of dynamite and two coils of fuse.

A bridge of the same company at Baychester, N. Y., was damaged to the extent of $1,500 early the next morning.

An apparent attempt was made the night of May 24, 1908, to destroy a Baltimore and Ohio bridge at Aiken, Md. A watchman pursued a man who was loitering about the bridge, and the fugitive tripped over a guy wire. The next morning five sticks of dynamite were found where he fell.

An attempt was made June 2, 1908, to dynamite a Baltimore and Ohio bridge at Perryville, Md. Four men approached the bridge, but were frightened away by a watchman, leaving dynamite behind them.

The same night an explosion of dynamite wrecked a steel derrick, twisted the rear wall of a big steel building out of shape and did other damage at Cleveland, O. Fourteen sticks of dynamite unexploded were found later with burned fuses attached.

The evening of June 15, 1908, a charge of dynamite exploded under a pile of material used in the construction of a bridge for the New York, New Haven and Hartford railroad at Somerset, Mass., entailing a loss of about $1,000.

Two charges of dynamite were exploded on the bridge of the Lehigh Valley railroad at Buffalo, N. Y., the night of July 1, 1908, weakening the structure and causing a loss of $1,500.

The Illinois Central railroad bridge in Chicago was dynamited on Aug. 6.

The same night the Harrison avenue viaduct at Louisville, Ky., was damaged by either dynamite or nitroglycerin.

Two charges of dynamite were exploded on the Eighteenth street bridge in St. Louis, Mo., on the morning of Aug. 9, 1908.

An attempt was made on Oct. 15, 1908, to destroy a bridge at Holyoke, Mass. Two watchmen found the burning fuse and put it out before any damage was done.

A charge of dynamite wrecked a portion of a bridge at Cleveland, O., on Nov. 30, 1908. The damage was $500.

Dynamite wrecked a building in Kansas City, Mo., on Dec. 24, 1908.

A loss of $500 was caused at Indiana Harbor, Ind., on March 18, 1909, when a car of steel was dynamited.

During the same month at the same place two packages of dynamite with a fuse attached were thrown from a Lake Shore freight train. No damage was done.

Opera House Destroyed.

The southeast side of the new opera house at Boston was destroyed by dynamite March 27, 1909.

A part of a viaduct at Hoboken, N. J., and considerable surrounding property were damaged by dynamite on March 30, 1909. Several persons had narrow escapes, five or six being injured.

A derrick car doing construction work at Kansas City, Mo., was dynamited on April 29, 1909.

The Cincinnati Southern bridge at Cincinnati was damaged by dynamite the next month.

Another attempt was made to wreck the same bridge on May 24, 1909, two charges of dynamite being exploded.

Considerable damage was done on June 7, 1909, to the New York Central railroad's bridge across East Ferry street, Buffalo, N. Y.

A loss of $2,000 was caused by the dynamiting of material awaiting delivery June 26, 1909, for the Pennsylvania railroad bridge at Steubenville, O.

The same night the Main street viaduct at Kansas City, Mo., under construction, was dynamited.

A suit case containing gun cotton was exploded under a pile of steel girders in the yard of the Whitehead & Kales plant at Detroit, Mich., on June 9, 1909.

A third attempt to wreck the Cincinnati Southern's viaduct was made Aug. 12, 1909. The dynamite caused $700 damage.

Dynamite partly wrecked a railroad bridge in New York city Aug. 15, 1909. A month later dynamite destroyed a derrick used in the construction of a viaduct over the New York Central railroad tracks at Buffalo, N. Y.

Another attempt on this same viaduct was made on Oct. 6, 1909.

Four Buildings Damaged.

Four buildings under construction by Albert von Spreckelsen in Indianapolis were damaged on Oct. 24, 1909. The total estimated loss was $13,000. The buildings were a telephone exchange, a library building, Mr. von Spreckelsen's planing mill and his barn.

A crane being used in the construction of a bridge near Cleveland, O., was dynamited on Nov. 4, 1909, causing a loss of $40,000. A watchman was buried under the debris and narrowly escaped death.

A bomb was exploded under four cars of structural steel on a Michigan Southern side track in Chicago on Jan. 22, 1910. It is estimated that the damage was $3,000.

Dynamite was exploded at the factory of the Pan-American Bridge company, Newcastle, Ind., on April 5, 1910. The damage was estimated at $800.

The plant of the Pacific Coast and Lumber company, Oakland, Cal., was wrecked by dynamite during the summer of 1910. It was the fourth time in two years that the mill had been wrecked.

An office building being erected in Seattle, Wash., was destroyed by dynamite in September, 1910.

Dynamite was used in two places in Peoria, Ill., on the night of Sept. 4, 1910. The plant of the Lucas Bridge and Iron works was wrecked, and the night watchman was injured seriously. Two carloads of steel girders for use in a railroad bridge at Peoria were dynamited. A two gallon can of nitroglycerin was found hidden in the steel girders of the new railroad bridge the next day. A time clock had been set, but the explosion was prevented by faulty electrical connections. The clock had been set to discharge the nitroglycerin at the same hour the Lucas plant was destroyed. A bomb exploded at the plant of the Winslow Bros. company at Chicago on Sept. 15, 1910.

Los Angeles Times Disaster.

The Los Angeles Times building was destroyed on Oct. 1, 1910, twenty-one lives being lost. The property loss was $1,000,000. This was the worst disaster due to an explosive that had been recorded.

A search the next day disclosed dynamite near the home of General Harrison Gray Otis, owner of the Times, and the home of the secretary of the Merchants' association.

In the summer of 1910 dynamite was exploded in a new church structure at Clinton, Ind., and the building wrecked. Shortly before a bridge at the place was wrecked by dynamite.

Early in the morning of March 24, 1911, dynamite exploded in the basement of the new courthouse at Omaha, Neb., causing a large loss.

The same night the offices of the Caldwell & Drake Manufacturing company, at Columbus, Ind., were dynamited and destroyed. The plant was not damaged. The Omaha courthouse was built by the Columbus concern.

On March 20 dynamite was exploded beneath a new wing of a hotel under construction at French Lick, Ind.

THOMAS F. CURLEY

HAS SOME APPETITE.

Eats Thirteen Lobsters, Sixty Eggs or a Hundred Oysters at a Meal.

Sixty soft boiled eggs, thirteen lobsters or 100 oysters on the half shell at one meal is the record attained by Thomas F. Curley, the heartiest man in Rockland, Mass., who announces that he will devour a larger quantity of eggs, lobsters or oysters than any other champion eater in the state.

When Mr. Curley feels very hungry it is a common practice for him to enter a lunchroom and devour all that the menu calls for. Then he asks for a duplicate order, gets it and eats all that is set before him. If he fasts for a couple of days there seems to be no limit at all to his capacity for food.

"I seldom eat on a wager," says Curley. "Chiefly I eat to satisfy my appetite, which is always good. I have hardly known a sick day since I was born in Roxbury, about thirty-three years ago. I have always had a good appetite, and all kinds of food seem to agree with me."

Mr. Curley eats four meals a day and weighs 175 pounds. In explaining his diet he says:

"For breakfast I generally have a good sized order of steak, two raw and three fried eggs, two baked potatoes, two slices of toasted bread and a pint of coffee.

"As an example of my usual dinner I may mention a large order of roast beef, with side orders of veal and lamb, a cup of tea, two pieces of pie and two orders of pudding.

"For supper an ordinary menu with me would consist of cold roast pork and beans, a side order of cold roast beef, a pint of milk, three slices of cake and a dish of cherries."

He says he has never suffered from dyspepsia.

"Oh, You Kid!" Is Barred.

Hereafter it is against the law in Brockton, Mass., to say "Oh, you kid!" in the streets.

husband's residence there as assistant secretary of state, prior to his appointment as ambassador.

The Hills are accompanied by their daughter, Miss Katherine, who made her debut last winter at the German court, where she attracted much attention. Mrs. Hill is regarded in greater favor by Berliners because of the fact that she bears a striking resemblance to the beloved Queen Louise of Prussia, one of the favorite heroines of German history.

Dr. Hill will retire as ambassador to Germany on July 1.

SPEAKER CLARK'S GAVEL.

It Came From the Apron Log of an Old Haunted Mill.

Speaker Champ Clark rules the house of representatives at Washington with a big new gavel of bur oak, which comes from the apron log of an ancient haunted mill in Pike county, Mo. The mallet comes from the mill dam of the first gristmill ever built north of the Missouri river. Away back in 1817 Enock Matson, said to be the first white child born in Bourbon county, Ky., who had migrated to Missouri, built an old fashioned mill on the Peno river. Many years ago the mill tumbled down and was almost forgotten, except for the fact that it was presumed to be haunted by Indians who had battled with whites there because the daughter of an Indian chief ran away with a paleface.

Last summer a descendant of Pioneer Matson and a number of Mr. Clark's constituents in Ralls county sought the old mill site and, abetted by a pair of Missouri mules, drew from the sand and water the apron log of the now useless mill dam. The gavel was cut from it, brightly varnished and sent on to Washington.

On one face the mallet bears the inscription:

"Made from the apron log of the first mill built north of the Missouri river, on the Peno, Pike county, by Enock Matson in 1817. Presented to Champ Clark, first speaker of the house of representatives from Missouri, by his constituents in Ralls county, Missouri."

On the opposite face is engraved one of Mr. Clark's favorite maxims:

"He serves his party best who serves his country well."

S.S.S. THE BEST SPRING TONIC

Spring is the season when the blood is weakest, and our systems least responsive to the demands of nature. It is the time of fickle appetites, poor digestion, lack of energy, bodily fatigue, and many other systemic disturbances which warn us that we need a tonic. A great many so called tonics are mere nerve stimulants, often producing exhilarating effects, but acting with decided injury on the system later. If your system is weak and depleted you can only tone it up by supplying an increased amount of nourishment, and this can come only through pure, rich blood. S. S. S. is the greatest of all blood purifiers; and it is the one medicine you can rely upon to supply the system with the best tonic effects and at the same time thoroughly purify the blood. Many people have put off using a tonic until the system became so weakened it could not resist disease, and have paid for the neglect with a spell of debilitating sickness. S. S. S. is nature's ideal tonic; made entirely of healthful roots, herbs and barks. It tones up the stomach and digestion, aids and improves the appetite, and in every way contributes to strong, robust health. S. S. S. is for sale at drug stores.

CHAPTER XXII.

MAN could hardly be in more desperate condition than I was. Except for Daria, who was powerless, I had no friend. I was to die—how soon I did not know. I was to be tortured, and since the king had such friends as Vasca and Lady Aldrida beside him there was no knowing what horrors they might not persuade him to perpetrate upon me. Yet, strange to say, I was not utterly cast down.

Costa heaved a fat, heavy sigh of relief when he got me back into my dungeon.

"I said it was all waste of time," he remarked in a callous manner. "And you didn't take my advice. You spoke too much."

He sat thoughtfully for a few moments.

"About these executioners?"

"Well?"

"You must make friends with them."

"How? I have nothing to give in exchange for their courtesy."

"One doesn't do much for nothing in this country as a rule," he laughed, "nor in any other country, for that matter. But we have a certain admiration for a brave man. It might be managed. We must make friends with these executioners."

His friendliness encouraged me.

"Would you grant me a favor?" I asked.

He was on his guard in a moment.

"It is not easy to grant favors in my position."

"This is not a large one. Tell me, am I still allowed a daily constitutional on the ramparts?"

"Oh, yes. You will be treated well until your last day dawns."

"And the princess too?"

"Yes, and the other prisoners too."

"Could you not so arrange it that we might meet upon the ramparts?"

"Impossible!"

"Think, Costa, she is a woman. A kind word of encouragement would mean so much to her."

"Trust me, I will speak the kind word."

"She and I are friends in affliction; it would mean more to her if I spoke it."

"I do not doubt that," he said, with a chuckle. "You attempted to deceive me when you said you did not love her."

"I reverence her."

"Yet you say you do not love her?"

"Have I actually said that? Come, Costa, grant me this favor, and you may demand of me anything it is in my power to give. You shall stand by me while I speak to her. In a few days I shall be lying leaden footed in the river below us. It will be good to remember that you did a comrade a service."

"I like you, Verrall, but I love myself better. I cannot do it. I will see what I can do with the executioners."

Had I had only myself to think of I believe I should have made a dash for liberty during one of my daily constitutions and thrown myself from the ramparts. I had Daria to think of. What good was an easy death for me if she were left to suffer?

In these days, indeed, it would have been difficult to accomplish such an escape. I was a show prisoner. At the time of my constitutional a small crowd collected upon the ramparts to watch me as I walked to and fro. There was, however, a very unpleasant side to being a show prisoner. At different times my cell was visited by the aristocracy of the city, even women and children coming to look upon the man who had once escaped from Yadasara and was so mighty a warrior.

My fame had outstripped all reason. I remember a child who came one day, a dark haired little girl with thoughtful eyes. She stood before me, looking at me intently. Presently I smiled at her, to her great delight, for she turned to her mother and remarked:

"I don't believe he would hurt me."

Poor little woman! I should think not. Evidently I was the fashionable bogy to frighten naughty children with.

O'Ryan constantly came with Costa, never alone. The Spaniard was afraid of his lieutenant might do me an injury. O'Ryan never spoke to me, and over and over again Costa railed at him for not making my last days as pleasant as possible.

"Surely it is revenge enough to see a former comrade in such a bad case," he urged.

But the Irishman was obdurate. I wondered that he could have changed so completely.

One evening Costa came, accompanied by four men, as villainous looking a crew surely as could be imagined. They entered stealthily, as though they were on a secret mission, and I rose from my seat, while a strange thrill traveled up my spine. I thought my time had come.

"I could not bring them before," said Costa. "You have been holding so many receptions."

I was relieved.

"The executioners," I said, trying to appear as if their coming had not disconcerted me. "Gentlemen, I regret that the poorness of my dwelling does not allow me to offer you much hospitality nor much comfort. I fear perhaps we may have some wine."

"I ordered it as we came," said Costa.

Two of my guests lounged against the wall, and two sat upon the edge of the table. O'Ryan brought the wine and retired into a corner. I could not see the expression of his face as Costa talked on my behalf.

"There are some men it is a pleasure to help slowly out of life," the Spaniard went on with diabolical carelessness. "The cries of a coward and a craven are good music, but there are others who, having faced death bravely every day, should not be allowed to die slowly even at the hands of their enemies. They have been real men all their lives, with a hand always ready to help a worthy friend or foe, and it is for worthy men to help them when the time comes. We all know that Sir Verrall is a man."

They nodded and drank their wine in silence.

I thought it was time to speak for myself.

"We are all men here," I said. I looked toward O'Ryan's corner and hoped he understood that I excepted him. "Had we met outside these walls we should have fought each other to the death. Whether I fell or my enemy fortune would decide, but whichever it was it would have been an honorable fall. I do not fear even such a death as you administer within these walls, but I should like to cheat those false friends of mine who would gloat over my lingering agonies."

"And one of them is a woman, eh?" said one man, who appeared to be the chief.

"Yes."

"A man should never suffer for the sake of a woman," he returned, and his companions nodded approval of the sentiment.

"Then, my friends, are you willing to help me?"

"Stand up," said the spokesman. "Let me look at you."

I did as I was requested. He was a master in his infernal art, and he passed his hands over my arms and back and thighs. His touch was loathsome, not in itself exactly, but by inference. The others gathered round him to watch the operation.

"There are muscles here that will take some cracking," he said thoughtfully.

"An unlucky blow on the head might ease that difficulty," I suggested.

"Are, and stretch our limbs instead of yours," he laughed. "My willingness to help you does not extend to that."

"A quick jerk should suffice," said Costa.

"Feel that muscle, captain," was the answer.

Costa put his hand under my shoulder and whistled.

"It is harder than the king's," said the executioner.

"I know that," Costa answered, remembering my trial of strength with his majesty, "but that sweet machine of yours should be equal to it."

"You think it has had practice enough, eh, captain?"

"I warrant it can be turned to crack even the knight's muscles, mighty as they are," said one of the others. "It can be gentle and powerful too. Do you remember when it embraced a man and a woman on the same day?"

"That experiment is likely to be repeated," said the chief executioner.

"The princess!" I exclaimed.

"They say so."

"Why trouble Sir Verrall with that?" said Costa, evidently angry that I had been told.

"It is of little consequence," answered the man, with a rough laugh. "In death a man can only take care of himself. I will treat the lady quickly, too, if the knight wills it."

With an effort I was calm.

"This is indeed being a comrade," I said, holding out my hand. "I have a weakness in my nature—a foolish one, perhaps, but I don't like women to suffer."

"It requires strength to suffer much. Women don't suffer as men do," he returned, with brutal certainty. "And if they do what matter? They are only women."

I dared not express my horror.

"But in this case you will bring death quickly!" I said.

"You may rely on us."

"That is satisfactory," said Costa, rising.

I had almost forgotten O'Ryan. I remembered him then.

"That man has heard our bargain," I said.

"He will not betray it."

"Do you swear not to do so?" I said, turning to the Irishman.

"I am not less merciful than the executioners," he growled.

I shook each villain by the hand as he left me and asked Costa to distribute among them what few possessions I had. I shook hands even with O'Ryan, and then I was left alone.

Did O'Ryan grasp my hand more firmly than was necessary? I might have spent the night wondering, but when they had gone I broke down for the first time during my imprisonment. I shed tears of impotent rage, pacing my cell frantically, cursing and beating its stone walls like a madman. It was horrible to know that Daria would be laid on that hideous couch to have her fair limbs broken; that her death, heroic though it might be, as I believed it would be, should be witnessed by such loathsome wretches as the men who had just left me and perhaps only by them. Only when I was thoroughly exhausted did I throw myself on my rugs and fall asleep to dream—what mockery it was!—of pleasant fields and sunshine.

I awoke refreshed. Perhaps the very dreams I have railed at gave my sleep its power to refresh me. My first thought was of Daria, my second of O'Ryan. Had he pressed my hand last night with some meaning? Surely it was impossible, seeing how he had helped to ruin me, but a man in dire necessity sees hope in anything.

It was not until the afternoon that I had any visitors that day. I had begun to hope that I was going to be left alone altogether when Costa came in and bound me, as usual.

"More fools with too much leisure," I said wearily.

"An old friend this time," said a merry voice in answer, and Lady Aldrida entered, followed by two or three men. It was easy to see that they were her captives as surely as I was a prisoner in the fortress.

"This was an old lover of mine, gentlemen," she said gayly. "He was foolish enough not to value my friendship. Behold the result."

She was a pretty picture, much as I hated her; I could not deny that. She had evidently ridden to the fortress, for she carried her whip in her hand.

"Do all men who displease you come to this?" asked another of her cavaliers.

"I am not so unmerciful. Sir Verrall and I are old friends, or enemies—which is it?" and she turned to me.

"Enemies," I answered shortly.

"True, and you are in my power."

"That does not trouble me."

"You have yet to learn the terrors this fortress holds. You shall have one spectator, I warrant you, when a slow turn of the lever draws that body of yours into agony. For all your boasting, these walls, solid though they be, will hardly drown your cries, and if you have sense left to hear anything you shall hear my laugh."

"I shall be glad of a spectator," I answered. "It gives a man courage."

"You shall not profit by my coming. I will pour all I possess into the hands of the executioner if he but kills you slowly enough."

I could laugh at this threat since the executioners were my friends.

"Count Vasca would be king in Yadasara, yet with all your beauty he would not make you queen but for the fact that he might be afraid to make an enemy of an accomplice."

"Is it not time we were going, Lady Aldrida? Our horses will be getting restive," said one of her companions.

"Besides, the man is a prisoner. Why not leave him in peace?"

"You can go if you will. I have no need of you," she said angrily.

He bowed low to her and left the dungeon.

"Your friends are even now finding you out," I sneered.

She changed her tone.

"You make me angry, Sir Verrall. I came on an errand of mercy. It may not yet be too late. I have the ear of the king. Why not ask me to plead to him for you?"

"I have never yet asked quarter from an enemy."

"For Princess Daria, then. Will you not plead for her?"

"Not to you."

"Her limbs, like mine, are young, perhaps beautiful. Being slowly broken upon a rack is sad use to put them to."

"It is possible that Count Vasca has already pleaded for her," I answered.

"If she would marry him he would use his best endeavors, I warrant you. He is so faithful a friend that he is capable of pleading for her life and for your death."

"I see I cannot help you. You persist in making me angry, and angry I am dangerous."

"Woman, you are always dangerous to those who trust you," I said hotly.

"Beware, gentlemen; a viper is a pet not to be caressed lightly. I know this woman."

"Not yet. You will not plead for your princess, and you are wise, perhaps, for I hate her as I hate you. In a few hours you shall have your desire—you shall embrace her, but you shall have no tongue to tell her of your love. You shall lie together in the waters underneath this fortress, and I shall laugh every time I think of you. You know me! I tell you, you have much to learn. It is time I began to teach you, like this and that."

She laid her riding whip sharply across my face twice as she spoke. My arms were bound behind me. I could do nothing to protect myself.

"You devil!" I howled, springing to my feet.

One of the men with her remonstrated; the other laughed, even as she laughed. I forgot that she was a woman. With a mighty wrench I snapped my cords and was free.

Costa had heard my howl and entered the dungeon as I broke my bonds. I struck at the woman, and the man received the blow, staggering back across the dungeon to the opposite wall. I heard the woman cry out in terror, but before I could strike again Costa and the guard had seized me. They could hardly hold me. Still, I am glad they succeeded, for I should have killed her had I been able to reach her.

"For heaven's sake, go!" cried Costa.

The woman needed no second bidding. She fled from the dungeon, her face as white as that of a corpse. She did not laugh now. This time it was I who laughed—laughed like a madman.

Memorial To Queen Victoria

ON May 16 King George will unveil the national memorial to Queen Victoria in front of Buckingham palace, which has been in process of erection for eight years. The statue represents Queen Victoria seated and is said to be an excellent likeness. The royal family express themselves as much pleased with the statue.

The opening ceremony will be performed in full state, all the royal family who are in England at the time being present, as well as the German emperor. Emperor William and empress will arrive in England on the day previous and during their brief stay will, of course, be the guests of the king and queen at Buckingham palace. They will probably stop till Friday, the 19th, and one day of the visit will be spent at Windsor castle. A state banquet will be given in the palace one of the evenings, followed by a small diplomatic and official reception. There will also be a family dinner party at the palace the day the emperor and empress arrive in London.

The elaborate ceremony of unveiling was recently rehearsed in the presence of the Duke of Connaught. His royal highness stood on a wooden platform at the base of the memorial, from which position he could watch the movements of the Irish guards, who lined the approaches. Guards of honor were also posted. The massed bands of the brigade of guards were in attendance and rehearsed their musical parts. For upward of an hour the various evolutions were repeated, so that on the day of the ceremony they may be performed with absolute precision.

HIS ASHES TO SWITZERLAND.

Restaurant Keeper's Wife Obeys Dying Request of a Customer.

Mme. Gabrielle Girard, wife of a New York Bohemian restaurant proprietor, sailed recently for Switzerland carrying an urn containing the ashes of Pere Du Bois, who was the oldest member of the Swiss colony in this country.

Du Bois was for many years a leading patron of Girard's restaurant. Recently he fell ill, and the Girards called upon him. He realized that he was mortally stricken and asked his friends to have his body cremated and the ashes taken to his old home in Neuchâtel.

Mme. Girard gave her word, and her present trip is in fulfillment of the dying request.

The Trend Towards Osteopathy.

(Editorial Cincinnati Enquirer.)

"The whole tendency of medical thought and experience now is in the direction of abandoning the extensive use of drugs. Just as the teaching of a moral liberal religion has softened, if not destroyed, the old orthodox dogmas of original sin, fore-ordination and eternal hell, the growth of homeopathy has immen-sely modified the old orthodox allopathic system of bleeding and drastic administration of drugs.

Both these influences have been sturdily resisted by the standpatters in religion and medicine, but both have largely succeeded. Insurgency is the order of the day everywhere.
Another more recent influence which has helped to reduce drug-giving has been the coming of osteopathy, which has found its way to reluctant recognition.

"It has unquestionably demonstrated that many ills for which drugs were being given grew out of osseous (bony) displacements or maladjustments, and needed only skillful manipulation."

"Now it is perceived that Nature intended that everyone should be healthy, and that the only causes of disease are either a mechanical injury or poison or impurities taken in to the system or waste remaining there and clogging it. Disease, according to the latest school of thought, is simply the effort of Nature to remove poison and obstructions and should not be suppressed or aborted, but Nature should be aided to sustain the system until the work is completed."

"Thousands have arisen to testify that osteopathy restored them to health. Almost daily additional triumphs over so-called incurables are being recorded, evidencing that the osteopaths are finding the keys and opening the seals and coming into possession of the glorious heritage to mankind—health, through Nature's methods."

"Here is seen osteopathy, backed by multitudes of witnesses from all walks of life, who attest to its potency and clamor for its treatment.
It is contributing to human happiness and comfort by displacing disease with health."

W. J. Durham of the local school board and Trustee Steinwedel went to Brownstown this morning to attend a meeting of the county board of education.

NEWSY PARAGRAPHS.

Chief Engineer Batchelor of the B. & O. S-W., went to Cincinnati this morning.

The only business in the circuit court this morning was the calling of the docket.

Mrs. Ezra Hinkle is here packing her household goods preparatory to shipping them to Rushville where the family will reside.

Mr. Tom Clark, of West Fourth street was sixty years old Saturday.
Several friends surprised him. The evening was spent in pulling taffy.

Mr. and Mrs. Adolph Cooley who have been the guests of Mr. and Mrs.
Philip Fettig, left this morning for their home in Tekoa, Wash. They came here on their honeymoon trip.
Mrs. Cooley was formerly Miss Elizabeth Thomas of Crothersville and a niece of Mrs. Fettig.

Jessie Sloan from near Cana, Jennings county, was arrested here today and placed in jail. She will be given a hearing in the juvenile court Tuesday morning and will probably be sent to the reform school. She is charged with moral delinquency and the officers here have been looking for her for some time.

The temperance lecture at the First Methodist church Sunday afternoon by the Rev. Wm. Pickett, of Kentucky, was one of the best temperance addresses that has been heard in this city for a long time. Those who heard him were well pleased. He held the attention of the audience for one hour and forty-five minutes. Mr.
Brownlee, the singer, was unable to be present.

Rev. Ray Banks, of Heltonville, who has just been called to the pastorate of the Baptist church, at Oolitic, has just received from a cousin in Missouri, who compiled it, a history of the Banks family, which gives him complete details of facts regarding his family that he has only known in a general way.

Rev. Banks is perhaps the youngest grandson of the American Revolution in Indiana, if not in the United States. He is only 35 years of age, but his grandfather was a soldier of the Revolutionary war and served under General George Washington.—

Bedford Democrat.

Mrs. Mary Bridges, formerly Mrs.
Mary Bridges of Seymour, writes from her home in Coles Valley, Oregon that it is a nice country out there but to her there is no place like Indiana. She states that the summers are fine there but the winters too damp, that the land is not as good as in Indiana and that the farms there raise less to the acre.

She believes Indiana people foolish to go to Oregon to farm and that as far as fruit raising is concerned Oregon is no better than Indiana if the same interest was taken in the crop here that is shown in the west. On account of the high altitude, Oregon
she says, is an excellent place of residence for persons inclined to lung trouble.

Jay C. Smith went to Burney Sun-

Mrs. William Abbott, 112 E. Second

a firm believer in the merits of Doan's Kidney Pills and I do not know that I would have done were it not for this remedy. My back was very lame and sore and for days at a time, I could hardly get about. The kidney secre-

Seymour Temperatures.

The following are the maximum and minimum temperatures as shown by the government thermometers at the Seymour volunteer weather observation station and reported by J. Robt.
Blair, observer. The figures are for twenty-four hours ending at noon:

| | Max. | Min. |
|-------------|------|------|
| May 1, 1911 | 73 | 58 |

1.43 rain last night.

Weather Indications.
Rain and colder tonight. Tuesday clearing, colder east portion.

COLD WAVE.

A Washington special says:
A cold wave, over the Northwest, will travel southeastward, reach the Mississippi valley and the western upper lake regions Monday, the Ohio valley Tuesday and New England in the middle of the week. This is expected to force temperatures to the freezing point by tomorrow morning over the central Rock mountain region and the Northwest. The first half of the week will be unsettled and the second half more normal in the East. A snow storm is possible over the Northern part of the upper lake region Monday or Tuesday. Generally fair weather after Monday is expected in the plains states, while in the South the weather sharps figure out more or less unsettled weather with occasional showers.

Starts Much Trouble.

If all people knew that neglect of constipation would result in severe indigestion, yellow jaundice or virulent liver trouble, they would soon take Dr. King's New Life Pills, and end it. Its the only safe way. Best for biliousness, headache, dyspepsia, chills and debility. 25c at The Andrews Drug Co.

Advertise in the Republican. It pays.

Rugby Bicycle

Other bicycles may be higher priced but they are not better.
The Rugby is a bicycle that can be depended upon. It is made of quality material in every part, and the parts that come in for unusual strain are made so good that they really become the strong points of the machine.

The Rugby shows its quality in the superior finish and its fine lines. The best of all, the Rugby shows quality after long continued service.
